

BirdWatching

www.BirdWatchingDaily.com

HOME

THE MAGAZINE

GETTING STARTED

HOTSPOTS NEAR YOU

SPECIAL FEATURES

PHOTOS & CALENDAR

SUBSCRIBE TO MAGAZINE GO

Digital Editions / Renewals / Gifts

NEWSLETTER SIGNUP

GO

Big Year birder on course to set new North American single-year record

7/13/2016 | 3

Big Year birder John Weigel on the Texas coast in early April 2016.

After a little more than six months of birding, John Weigel is only four species away from beating the record for most birds found in North America in a single year. He broke the Big Year record for Australia in 2012.

So far, Weigel's strategy has focused on finding birds that the ABA considers rare. As of July 11, he has counted 89 rare species and 746 total species. He's even recorded two species that may not have been seen in North America before — Cuban Vireo and Pine Flycatcher — and await ABA classification.

Massachusetts birder Neil Hayward set the current Big Year record, 749 species, in 2013.

So far, Weigel has been to 20 states and two Canadian provinces. He found the most rare species (19) in Alaska, where he ventured to the westernmost island, Attu Island.

He attributes his success so far to the El Niño conditions, which have resulted in an influx of rare birds. For the rest of the year, he will be racing time, the elements, and a small group of other dedicated Big Year birders also out to beat the record.

They include the writer and nude birder Olaf Danielson, who is running neck and neck with Weigel, and the educator and blogger Christian Hagenlocher. Weigel is tracking his efforts on his blog Birding for Devils, where he is sharing his list. Danielson is reporting his Big Year at The Bad Weather Birder. Hagenlocher is the author of The Birding Project.

CONNECT WITH US ON f t ••

Search

RECENT TWEETS Follow @birdwatchdaily

David Sibley tells how to use your binoculars to find more birds. <https://t.co/ati29YHIZN>
<https://t.co/rJaNr3TJcl>
about 2 hours ago

Red-tailed hawks flew farther west in spring than in fall. Find out why. <https://t.co/xSmgfgEMEO>
about 2 hours ago

eBird maps show where Solitary Sandpiper was in Jan, where it will be in Aug. <https://t.co/xEoulydGcZ> <https://t.co/6g1bB3IVR9>
about 3 hours ago

HOTSPOTS NEAR YOU

find a hotspot near you >>

Weigel's efforts are not just about the birds. He says his Big Year is about re-connecting with his home country while raising awareness about a non-bird species that he's trying to prevent from vanishing in his adopted country of Australia.

Weigel is founder and managing director of Devil Ark, a Global Wildlife Conservation priority project and the largest, most successful breeding program for the Endangered Tasmanian devil. Once widespread in Australia, the devils have been nearly wiped out by one of the only cancers known to spread as a contagious disease, called Devil facial tumor disease. The devils are now extinct on mainland Australia.

"It has been wonderful to use the excuse of birding to explore unimaginably beautiful areas of North America in a wide range of states, from Florida to California to Alaska, in search of rare birds," Weigel said. "I set out to explore, and now this has turned into the ride of my life. Even if I don't end up breaking the record, if more people hear about the Tasmanian devil through my efforts, this ride will be well worth it."

The most important bird news from early July.

Read John Weigel's blog Birding for Devils.

Read more about Devil Ark.

Updated July 13 to include links to blogs maintained by fellow Big Year birders Olaf Danielson and Christian Hagenlocher.

New to birdwatching?

Sign up for our free e-newsletter to receive news, photos of birds, attracting and ID tips, descriptions of birding hotspots, and more delivered to your inbox every other week. Sign up now.

See the contents of our current issue.

How to subscribe to BirdWatching.

SHARE THIS:

TAGS: ABA, Big Year, Birding, John Weigel

SEE ALSO

Best Camera For Bird Photography	Best Places for Bird Watching
Online Birds Photography Contest	Discount Camo Clothing
2016's Top 10 Binoculars	Bird Species Pictures
Best Cameras of 2016	Bird Photography Equipment Sale

← prev post

next post →

3 Comments

BirdWatching Daily

1 Login

Recommend

Share

Sort by Best

Join the discussion...

- Jennifer Snyder · 17 hours ago

Dear BirdWatchingDaily.com,
Quoting article above, "They include the writer and nude birder Olaf Danielson".
Some of my friends and I are concerned that Mr. Olaf might catch a cold on Attu, but are also very curious if he has a 2017 calander in the works? You know, one showcasing his Big Year?
Please let us know.
VR,
Jennifer Snyder & "The Facebook Bird Misidentification Page" members.

^ | v · Reply · Share ›
- berjm · 8 days ago

Strange Article. How could the author somehow briefly mention the other ABA Big Year Competitor who at the moment (at least for a few more days) has 2 more species than John W (748 incl one provisional--I believe) thus is also very close to the record and unlike John is using ebird--Olaf Danielson. http://olafsbigyear.blogspot.c...

Secondly, There are also two others who will easily break 700 this year and one will maybe get close to the old record. Christian Hagenlocher who has ca. 691 http://www.thebirdingproject.c...

and Laura Keene with 668 as of today

^ | v · Reply · Share ›
- Paolo → berjm · 7 days ago

John is also using e-bird now. And John has still more code 1 and 2 birds so probably easier for him to leapfrog Olaf. Nevertheless, Olaf could have gotten a bit more attention in this article, as he is indeed in front and has been blogging since the beginning of his effort, while John only started blogging somewhere in April.

^ | v · Reply · Share ›

ALSO ON BIRDWATCHING DAILY

- American Goldfinch

1 comment · 19 days ago

Paul O'Toole — Beautiful capture for sure. Love it.

Collared-dove takes over American Robins' nest

1 comment · a month ago

Paul O'Toole — In my yard the robins will chase off squirrels with ease so I take it the collared dove must be a pretty ...
- Northern Cardinal

1 comment · 23 days ago

Skip V. Patel — That must be so embarrassing for the Cardinal!

White-breasted Nuthatch

1 comment · 2 months ago

Skip V. Patel — Ahhh! The Nuthatch is one of my favourite birds!

Subscribe

Add Disqus to your site Add Disqus Add

Privacy

