

Thigh's the limit! Sarah Silverman wears kinky boots and fishnets at Turtle Ball

Sarah Silverman met her doppelganger at the Turtle Conservancy's fourth annual Turtle Ball in New York City on Monday.

Unfortunately, the dead ringer for the stand-up comedian was only a design on the wall behind her as she stood on the green carpet.

The 46-year-old seemed to have picked up on the uncanny resemblance, mugging for the camera beside the image and pointing at it with her thumb.

Spot the resemblance! Sarah Silverman met her doppelganger at the Turtle Conservancy's fourth annual Turtle Ball in New York City on Monday

Amid a clique of swankily dressed celebrities including Mark Ruffalo and Drew Barrymore, Sarah'd stuck to a casual ensemble.

She'd folded back the cuffs of her red, gold and dark green tartan shirt over the sleeve-ends of the pale grey hoodie she'd left open on top of it.

The I Smile Back actress had worn a tiny pair of denim shorts over black hose that spilled into a matching pair of black leather boots.

Drew offered up her signature glowing smile while posing in a flowing dress with starry white patterns speckled across a black field.

Gaps had been carved out of the dress at the shoulders, and it was hemmed shortly above the ankle, giving a full view of her ankle-strap stilettos.

The 42-year-old scion of the Barrymore acting family - that of Lionel, Ethel and John - let her lightly wavy hair tumble down about a pair of green earrings.

Mark trod the green carpet alongside Sunrise Coigny, whom he'd married back in 2000, and the pair of them smiled lovingly at each other on camera.

The 49-year-old's deep purple suit clashed elegantly against his blue shirt, which he'd worn with a midnight blue tie and a pair of walnut brown shoes.

Meanwhile, 44-year-old Sunrise had got on a pearl grey sleeveless top with a floor-length beige skirt, plus a cream sash wound about her waistline.

Sarah, a vocal advocate of Bernie Sanders during his failed run against Hillary Clinton in last year's Democratic primary, showed her continued support that day.

She'd been seen out in the NoHo area of Manhattan that day wearing a T-shirt with an image of Bernie riding a purple unicorn beneath a rainbow.

'BERNIE SANDERS' was written above the drawing, and 'MAGICAL' below it.

To be a comedian, a person must be funny. And that actually takes some talent. She has neither.

Comedian. Good one. Just because someone makes you laugh wither stupidity, that does make one a comedian.

Silverman just goes to show everyone that just because you have money doesn't mean you have good fashion sense.

I like Mark Ruffalo's wife's dress a lot but it needs to be hemmed. Drew looks fantastic.

Silverman seeks attention. I guess her little depression movie wasn't enough. Does this person actually do any work? Or does she just latch on to men who can help her career?
